

AMANDA WHITELEY

ATTORNEY

PRACTICE EMPHASIS

Amanda is a member of two practice groups. As a member of our Estate Planning, Probate and Trust practice she assists clients on a range of estate planning, trust matters, and business issues. She develops and implements succession plans and other plans of reorganization that efficiently navigate tax matters and successfully transfer private family companies to successive generations. Amanda also prepares wills and trusts (irrevocable and revocable) as well as advanced estate plans that involve charitable and family gifts, private foundations, and family limited liability companies. She handles the legal administration of many large and small probates, which can often give rise to post-mortem tax planning.

Amanda also brings a wealth of experience to our Corporate and Business Law practice group. She is experienced in business transactions, including drafting and negotiating letters of intent, purchase agreements, leases and finance agreements. She advises clients on business entity selection and formation, and reviews business-related contracts.

Passionate about traveling and with a particular fondness for visiting Maui, Amanda also has a strong interest in aviation, including searching for “lost airports.” She was able to combine the two interests on a recent trip to Maui when Amanda received a tip about one such lost airport from a colleague whose wife had visited the airport as a child.
