

JAMES D. STENSEL

ATTORNEY

PRACTICE EMPHASIS

James is an Associate with the Family Law Practice Group. His career spans more than two decades, with several years working alongside many of Seattle's most notable and respected family law attorneys. Honed by his experiences, James' strategy in each case is to focus on creative ways to resolve disputes rather than create them. However, James also appreciates that clients often have immediate needs that demand swift action and court intervention. In every instance, James's goal is to help families deal with critical legal issues through patient, thoughtful, and professional guidance and representation focused on preserving their legal rights and interests.

Since the day he became an attorney, James has focused his practice solely on family law. James is experienced in several areas of family law, including divorce cases involving high net worth, complex finances, jurisdictional issues, and enforcement. He also has extensive experience litigating matters both in court and through the mediation/arbitration process. James understands that the decisions made in a case will affect a client's financial health for years to come and approaches each case with a long-term-outcome focus and strategy.
